1. I am a white female, 49 years of age. 2. I was employed by the Hyatt Corporation for 22 years. In January 1994, I was named Director of National Accounts for Central National Sales. My office was located in Cincinnati, Ohio. My performance has always been superior, as evidenced by my excellent evaluations and performance numbers. 3. In December 2000, Brian Booth, who is 38 years old, became the Director of Sales & Marketing for Hyatt. He had no prior national sales experience with the Company. The Director of Sales & Marketing position was never posted or advertised. I was not given an opportunity to apply for the position. 4. In February, 2001, Booth, who became my supervisor, increased my sales quota by 40% to $5 million in 6 months, an unreasonable goal. I expressed my dismay but Booth only lowered the quota to $4 million. My normal sales goal was $3 million. (Continued on separate page)

5. In July 2001, I was given a mid-year review by Booth. This was the first mid-year review I had ever received since joining the Company. Booth rated me as "meeting expectations", the lowest rating I had ever received. In all my prior evaluations as Director of National Accounts, I was rated as "exceeds expectations." Booth's basis for my review was that I had only achieved 78% of my sales goal, which he artificially inflated in February. In fact, I had actually exceeded my normal sales goal of $3 million.
6. During this July meeting, Booth commented on my recent marriage and asked me if I was going to stay home and enjoy being married. I was offended by the remark and asked Booth if he asked this of his male employees. I informed him that I had no intention of giving up my career and that I intended to remain in my job for many years to come.
7. On September 28, 2001, I received a call from Booth who informed me that my employment was being terminated for "economic reasons" effective October 1, 2001. I was never provided an explanation as to what economic reasons required my termination. I was never offered an alternative position.
8. My accounts were then divided between two Directors of National Accounts, Barbara Hale, who is in her mid-30's, and Molly Crompton, who is in her early 30's. Hale had only worked in national sales for 3 years. Crompton had only worked in national sales for two years. Crompton had only been in the position of Director of National Accounts for 2 months when she was given my accounts. I have far more experience in national sales than either Hale or Crompton.
9. I believe that I was not promoted and was terminated because of my age and gender.
